

Anti-Racism Blog Series Archive Links

Ethiopian Community Development Council (ECDC)

October 2020

Talking about Race and Racism: Preparing for Conversations with Refugee Clients

In our role as providers, managers, and evaluators of services that help newcomers successfully integrate into U.S. communities, we must be willing and able to have meaningful conversations about race and racism with refugees.

Talking about Race and Racism: Tips for Participating in Introductory Conversations

Conversations about race are challenging, but they allow people to get to know one another better and build stronger communities. It is important for newcomers to have a better understanding about racism in America, how it may affect their daily lives, and what they can do to change it.

Talking about Race and Racism: Tips for Conversations with Refugee Youth

As a young person, adjusting to a new place is difficult no matter the circumstances. In adapting to their new communities, refugee youth need to understand how race and racism may shape their lives in the U.S.